"Young Country" Music Show

If you enjoy listening to a variety of great music, then you won't want to miss the Young Country Music Show. They play classic and current country, gospel, bluegrass and old time rock-and-roll. They perform at the Young Country Music theater at Laredo (previously Cuz'n Puds Jamboree) regularly but have also performed at fairs, theaters and schools in Iowa and Missouri. Although they have not yet released a CD of their own, they have been included on several others, including Southern Iowa's Cowboy singer Pat Meade. They were also honored to serve as the backup band for Lionel Cartwright at the North Central Missouri Fair in Trenton in 2000.

Young band consists of Todd Young who plays bass, sings, emcees and manages the group. His love has always been music of all types and he plays in a couple of local gospel groups as well as Young Country. Clitus Meeker began playing lead guitar when he was 12 years old with Unionville's own Dean Wyant and his brother Gene and Duane Simmons who formed the group "The Country Gentlemen" years ago. If there is anyone who plays like Chuck Berry it's Clitus. Gene Wyant is on the rhythm guitar and sings lead vocals and harmony. He is known for his smooth voice when singing the classics. Johnny and Carolyn Vincent have been playing bluegrass music all their lives. The Vincent family has performed all over the US and have been known for their group the Sally Mountain Show for years. Jamie Pauls is one of the most popular piano players around. He has been playing gospel music since 1982 and teaches Music Appreciation at North Central Missouri College (NCMC) in Trenton. Ann Brock serves as lead vocalist when she's not disc jockeying on the radio. She was invited as a guest when Young country opened and did such a great job that she was hired full-time. Rick Phillips is the newest member of Young Country and plays the drums. He has a broad music background having played for the super country / southern rock group Ludlow in the 1980's. He and his wife started a Contemporary Christian group Abundant Grace in the 1990's which they are still a part of today. No matter your musical tastes, Young Country will have something you're sure to enjoy!
